Poct's Corner.

The evening star kept vigil in the West,

And the white clouds of the east revelled in The fairy beautics of the full-orbed moon.

"Silence was deep and slumber was profound." As-cahe gee, the aged Sachem, sat Alone and sad amid the mounds that held The white bones of his once illustrious tribe.
The dew-drops fell upon the war-chief's brow
As if in pity—they had come to cool
The wild and burning thoughts that racked his brain,

As long and mournfully he gazed upon As long and mournfully he gazed upon The last sad home of his once gallant braves, And, as his memory turned back to the days When his proud tribe around him stood in war; His eye rekindled and his wild breast heaved, And thus the red-man mused:

The eagle mates

Not with the sparrow, neither with the dove, Neither mates the red-man with the white. Like leaves in the sunny Spring. the pale-face

And like the summer flowers to the Autum yield, So must the red-man yield unto the white. Oh! Man-e-to, thou hast left me alone-A withered tree upon a barren spot.

Ch! Hah-wan-ne-go, why fate me to be
The last leaf of my tribe? O! can I look
On graves of "children, braves, old men and all" And then not wish to lie with them in death? Oh! hasten, thou, Great Spirit, and bear off My restive soul unto the place where deer And elk in plenty roam, and I shall be Among the happy spiri s of my tribe.

High up, amid a galaxy of stars,
And resting on the milky-way's white wing
The moon as t'were had stopped to gaze awhile
Uyon the heavenly brightnsss thrown o'er earth;
And, as she then moved 'long her starry path,
She result to them appears are yet light. She seemed to throw a pensive ray of light And weave a pure and hallowed net around The drooping form of that proud Mohawk chief. As-cahe-gee still was there, sad and lone For now he knew his hour had come, and he Had hid his face within his ample robe
And laid him down upon a mound to die,
While, from his lips there fell a solemn chaunt—
The death song of his tribe.

Calmly his soul

Now winged its way unto the place where he In life had wishad and prayed that it might go. Before another sun arose, there came Two hunters, of the pale-face tribe, and there They found the body of As-cahe-gee Shrouded in his robe and COLD IN DEATH. Pitying the aged chief, they opened A grave beside the one where he died GREENSBURG, Ky., April, 1856.

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A

FAMILY PHYSIC.

THERE has long existed a public demand for an effective purgative pill which could be relied on as sure and perfectly safe in its operation. This has been prepared to meet that demand, and an extensive trial of its virtues has conclusively shown with the public decision. It has been unfortunate for the patient hitherto that almost every purgative medicine is acrimonious and irritating to the bowels. This is not. Many of them produce so much griping pain and revulsion in the system as to more than counterbalance the good to be derived from them. These pills produce no irritation or pain, unless it arise from a previously existing obstruction or derangement in the bowels. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity; but it is better that any medicine should be taken judiciously. Minute directions for their use in the several diseases to which they are applicable are given on the box. Among the complaints which have been speedily cured by them, we may mention Liver Complaint, in its various forms of Jaundice, Indigestion, Languor and Loss of Appetite, Listlessness, Irritability, Bilious Headache, Bilious Fever, Fever and Ague, Pain in the Side and Loins; for, in truth, all these are but the consequence of diseased action in the liver. As an aperient, they afford prompt and sure relief in Costiveness, Piles, Colic, Dysentery, Humors, Scrofula and Scurvy, Colds with soreness of the body, Ulcers and impurity of the blood; in short, any and every case where a purgative is required.

They have also produced some singularly successful cures in Rheumatism, Gout, Dropsy, Gravel, Erysipelas, Palpitation of the Heart, Pains in the Back, Stomach, and Side. They should be freely taken in the spring of the year, to purify the blood and prepare the system for the change of seasons. An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, and restores the appetite and vigor. They purify the blood, and, by their stimulant action on the circulatory system, renovate the strength of the body, and restore the wasted or diseased energies of the whole organism.

This remedy has won for itself such notoriety from its cures of every variety of pulmonary disease, that it is entirely unnecessary to recount the evidences of its virtues in any community where it has been employed. So wide is the field of its usefulness, and so numerous the cases of its cures, that almost every section of the country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried its superiority lungs by its use. When once tried its superiority over every other medicine of its kind is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs which are incident to our climate. And not only in formidable attacks upon the lungs, but for the milder varieties of Colds, Coughs, Hoarseness, &c.; and for Children it is the pleasantest and safest medicine that can be obtained.
